

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A file processing unit comprises a first signature information producing unit that produces first signature information in accordance with a predetermined rule utilizing the data of a file designated by a file close request issued in an application used in a computer system, and a signature information storage control unit that stores the first signature information, correlated with the file designated by the file close request, in a storage unit.

004240" GET65560